Identifying Work Environment Preferences

Inez Information

Now that you've started learning more about yourself and your strengths when it comes to making decisions - another important thing to consider when thinking about possible jobs is the environment that you will be working in. Your work environment includes things like:

1. Working with people or working alone
2. Quiet or noisy
3. Work from home or away from home
4. Work during the day or work at night

There are many things that are part of your work environment and they will affect how you feel about your job.

Vocabulary for this Activity:

Salary – In certain jobs, employers will offer to pay an employee a specific amount of money each year for the work the person is doing.

Tim Task

The goal of this activity is to help you learn about some of the things you would like Or not like when thinking about work environments. Thinking about these things is an important step in identifying the types of jobs you might be interested in learning more about. Here is a quick explanation of the steps in this activity:

Step 1:

For each group in this activity, place a "B" next to the statement that represents your best choice.

Step 2:

For each group in this activity, place a "W" next to the statement that represents your worst choice.

Step 3:

Circle your "Top 2 Best Choices".

Step 4:

Put an "X" over your "Top Two Worst Choices".

Step 5

Go to your "Activity Tracker" on page 97 and find the section for page 59. Then, write down your "Top 2 Best Choices" and your "Top 2 Worst Choices".

Activity 4

Working Likes and Dislikes (3 Parts)

Working Likes and Dislikes Surveys (3 Parts)

Inez Information

As you are starting to think about the sort of jobs you might be interested in, there are many things to consider. Some of these things include your talents, skills, and things you're already interested in. When people do things that they are interested in, they are usually happier and find ways to make a good living doing them.

Our goal is to help you learn more about your talents, skills, and things you're already interested in so it makes the process of choosing jobs a little easier.

Tim Task

The next three activities are the “Four Squared” style of activities. When you are finished, you will have a better understanding of some types of jobs that are available and which ones fit your strengths and interests the best.

Here is a quick review of the four steps you will be doing in these activities:

Step 1:

For each activity group, rank each item in order of importance using the following scale:

4 = first choice 3 = next best choice 2 = third best choice 1 = last choice

Step 2:

In Groups A-D, add the numbers going across each row and put the total on the line to the right.

Step 3:

Add the totals from both Row 1 + Row 7 and write the total in Box 1

Add the totals from both Row 2 + Row 5 and write the total in Box 2

Add the totals from both Row 3 + Row 6 and write the total in Box 3

Add the totals from both Row 4 + Row 8 and write the total in Box 4

Step 4:

Follow the directions for Step 4 in the activities on pages 64, 65, and 66.
